Why be a Volunteer?

It's not for money, it's not for fame. It's not for any personal gain.
It's just for love of fellow man. It's just to lend a helpful hand.
It's just to give a tithe of self. That's something you can't buy with wealth.
It's not for medals worn with pride. It's for that feeling deep inside.
It's that reward down in your heart. It's a feeling that you've been a part Of helping others far and near. That makes YOU a VOLUNTEER!

Miss Ima G* Bugg

Miss Ima G* Bugg, our own unique, lighthearted research associate, has agreed to try to answer our questions and give us some research clues. If you are confused and in need of help, drop her a line. If she can't help you, maybe some of our readers can. Send your questions/comments to: Miss Ima G* Bugg, Friends of Genealogy, Inc., P. O. Box 17835, Shreveport, LA 71138-0835.

Dear Miss Ima G* Bugg. Where is Holmesville, LA? I've heard that many prominent Shreveporters lived there.

Dear Searcher: You're right, many prominent Shreveporters did live there. Among them were William E. Hamilton (Hamilton Terrace was named for him), W. S. Penick (founder of the Brer Rabbit Syrup Company and Penick & Ford, Cotton Factors), W. P. Stiles (pioneer oilman), Abe Meyer (planter), Felix Weiller (a banker whose large Tudor revival home, until its demolition in the early 1990s, was a landmark just north of Doctors Hospital), and many others. Holmesville, now part of Highland, comprised the northernmost portion of the Highland area, bounded by Jordan Street on the south, Louisiana Avenue on the west, Marshall Street on the east, and I-20 on the north. It was developed just after the Civil War on the southern edge of downtown and was a desirable area because overall it was on high ground and was rolling, hilly, and rich in natural springs. At one time, Louisiana Avenue was known as Hamilton Terrace and was for a time considered one of the best addresses in Shreveport. (Eric J. Brock, Journalpage, July 10, 1999)

Dear Miss Bugg: What are "Two Seed Baptists"?

Dear Curious: As all researchers are well aware, Baptist Church groups have long had a habit of splitting up fairly frequently, and at present there are now several different varieties. Most of these divisions took place in the early 1800s, resulting with the Missionary Baptists, Primitive Baptists, Old Baptists, Separate Baptists, Christian Baptists, Free Will Baptists, and others. The "Two Seed in the Spirit Predestinarian Baptists" is now the smallest group and is on the verge of extinction. The Two Seed doctrine was proclaimed about 1816 by Elder Daniel Parker, a Baptist preacher in Sumner Co, TN. He taught that every person is born with either the good seed of God or the bad seed of Satan and that this is unchangeable. Those with God's seed are prompted by God to repent, while those with Satan's seed receive no prompting from God. At death, God's seed return to Him, Satan's seed to him, and the body returns to dust, never to be resurrected. For an excellent article on this subject, see The Two Seed in the Spirit Predestinarian Baptist Church in Middle Tennessee, 1816-1998 by Thomas G. Webb, 835 South College Street, Smithville, TN 37166 published in The Upper Cumberland Researcher, Volume XXIV, No. 2 (Summer 1999).

Dear Ima G*: When will the 1930 Federal Census be available?

Dear Anxious: The 1930 Federal Census is scheduled to be released in the year 2002. Only some of the Southern States are indexed; before the indexing was completed, World War II began and the labor force was needed elsewhere. The states indexed are Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia. In case you are planning ahead, neither the 1940 nor the 1950 Census is indexed.

Dear Miss Bugg: Everybody is talking about The Domesday Book, what is it?

Dear Scholar: The Domesday Book (pronounced DOHMZday) was the first official record of the property holders living in England and the amount of land they held. The information was collected and recorded at the command of William the Conqueror in 1086, twenty years after he and his followers from Normandy crossed the English Channel and conquered England. Afterward the properties of the great English landholders were taken over by William and his followers. William ordered the Domesday survey to discover how much land he owned, how the rest was divided, and how the land was peopled. The kingdom was divided into districts. Each district supplied census takers who knew the territory. The census and land survey covered most of the territory William controlled. No survey was held in either London or Winchester and information about regions in northern England is incomplete. Nevertheless, The Domesday Book is viewed as the greatest record of medieval Europe. It is displayed at the Public Record Office in London. [Editor's Note: A copy is available at Shreve Memorial Library in Shreveport, LA] S.C.G. Society Quarterly Newsletter, Memphis, MO.

Dear Miss Ima: How can I obtain the Corps of Engineers personnel file for my father?

Dear File: I'm afraid you may be out of luck with this one. According to Pam Clark, acting chief of the Mississippi Valley Division of the Corps of Engineers (P. O. Box 80, Vicksburg, MS 39181-0060), retired files from the region are send to a repository in St. Louis, MO. They are kept there for 30 years, then destroyed, following Corps regulations.

Dear Miss Bugg: I enjoy needlework and am wondering about those samplers young girls did in earlier times. It would seem that they would provide a wealth of information.

Dear Stitcher: Yes indeed they do. Many of the samplers done in earlier times are family records, containing marriage and birth dates. Needleworkers tend to be very careful in making their samplers as accurately as possible, so I would think that the information on them would be correct. There is a Web site that specializes in needlework for sale, including samplers [http://www.antiquesamplers.com]. Currently at this site are samplers for the following families: Phillips, Hutchinson, Somerby, Harrington, Atwood, and Richardson. (Missing Links, Vol. 4, No. 18)

Dear Miss Bugg: I'm told that I can get to DOLLI from my computer. How?

Dear Computer Bug: Where there's a will, there's a way. DOLLI is the on-line card catalog for Shreve Memorial Library and here's how to get there:

- Go to www.shreveport.net
- Select <Libraries> under the Community heading
- Under Public Libraries, select <DOLLI>
- 4. Login: <public>
- 5. Terminal Type: <3>
- 6. Test?: <n>
- 7. Press return. And, there you are, just as if you were in the library!

Dear Ima G* Bugg: I've been told that our ears are an excellent identification tool. How so?

Dear All Ears: You have heard correctly. One of the best means of identification of people is by the contours of their ears. It is said to be nearly as good as fingerprinting as no two people have exactly the same shape to their ears. The French require all ID cards to be in profile so that the ear can be clearly seen. This might help genealogists identify photographs of people taken at different ages. However, since most of our ancestors looked straight into the camera when having their pictures taken (Whiteside Genealogist, Sterling, IL)

Dear Ima G* Bugg: I've been told that I could be related to Humpty Dumpty. Come on!

Dear Doubtful: Really, it is possible! Most of us know that the Mother Goose characters in her rhymes were modeled after various personages in the 16th century. Humpty Dumpty was said to be King James Stewart IV of Scotland who died at the Battle of Flodden in 1513. He was a very large man who rode the largest horse in Scotland, nicknamed "The Wall." As King James rode him along the edge of a cliff to join his troops, the horse slipped and the two fell to their deaths. In another rhyme, Mistress Mary, the garden lass, generally is considered to have been Mary, Queen of Scotts (1542-1587), the daughter of King James V; her pretty maids all in a row may have been the four Marys: Mary Beaton, Mary Seaton, Mary Fleming, and Mary Livingston, her ladies-in-waiting. The cockleshells were decorations on a dress given to her by the Dauphin. Little Miss Muffet was also Mary, Queen of Scots, and the "big spider" was John Knox. Just a tidbit more: Mother Goose may actually have been Queen Bertha, the wife of Pepin and the mother of King Charlemagne; I guess that would make a lot of folks descended from Mother Goose! (Sue Marine, Morgan Memories, Decatur, AL)

Humpty Dumpty sat on a wall,

Humpty had a great fall,

All the king's horses and all the king's men, Couldn't put Humpty Dumpty together again.

A Study of Two Migration Patterns In the Southern Perkins Family

By Danielle Neal

My Perkins family can be documented as early as 22 Oct 1761 when three members of the Rees Perkins/Elizabeth Colson family were baptised in Price Frederick Winyaw Parish Church, South Carolina. Rees Perkins died in 1767 at age 38, leaving his widow with seven children:

David Perkins, b. 1750
James Perkins, b. 1751
John Perkins, b. 19 Sep 1753
Elizabeth Rebecca Perkins, b. 3 Apr 1757
Sarah Perkins, b. 3 Nov 1760
Samuel Perkins, b. 1762
Lewis Perkins, b. 1765

Of these seven, I know the subsequent history of three: James Perkins who married Margaret Chandler and migrated first to GA then to MS; Elizabeth R. Perkins who married John Warren and migrated first to GA them to MS; and Lewis Perkins who married 1st Janet Scott and 2nd Martha Gayden, and migrated to LA-MS.

The family's migration began after the Revolutionary War. In South Carolina this war left the state in turmoil. The area had been the scene of intense fighting among citizens who supported George III and those who supported the Revolution. Add to this the exhaustion of the soil by indigo and tobacco production, and one can see why the lure of cheap, new land and the opportunity for a fresh start led family groups to consider a move.

James Perkins got a land grant in Georgia and a number of connected families formed a colony in Liberty County, GA. James Perkins first appears on the tax rolls of Liberty County in 1806. He would have been 55 years old then.

Settlement of GA proceeded rather slowly. So slowly, in fact, that a state lottery was devised to give away parcels of land. James Perkins signed up for the lottery with two draws as a married man with a family, but as luck sometimes has it, his name was not drawn. But that was all right, for this country of ours was on a growing spurt. The Louisiana Purchase of 1803 added a vast territory and secured unrestricted use of the Mississippi River for our settlers.

Then in 1805 the first Choctow Cession permitted the settlement of a strip of southern Mississippi comprised of the present-day counties of Pike, Marion, Perry, Green, Lincoln, Lawrence, Covington, Jones and Wayne. The coastal counties of Hancock, Harrison and Jackson at that time still belonged to Spain.

The Mississippi Territory consisted roughly of the states of Alabama and Mississippi. Georgia at this time was developed from the coast inland to about half of its modern area. Between Georgia and the Mississippi Territory was another country—the Creek Nation. Someone sold the Creeks on the notion that as long as the white settlers just traveled through their land without stopping, they would pose no threat to the Creek Nation.

So, with proper passport signed by the Governor of Georgia, a settler could load his family in a wagon and move westward to the Mississippi Territory. Many of these old passport records survive and serve to verify when our families migrated west.

On Friday, 5 Jan 1810, John and Seth Smart, the former with a wife and two children, and John Warren with his wife, two children and seven Negroes, obtained a passport to travel through the Creek Nation to the Mississippi Territory. And a year later on 6 December 1810, passports were prepared for John Moore with his wife, five children and seven Negroes from Sumpter District, SC and for James Perkins with his wife and two children and Samuel Perkins with his wife and one Negro.

Most probably their route was the Upper Federal Road, traversing the south from Augusta, Georgia southwest to Mobile, Alabama. From Mobile a wagon trail extended west to Natchez, MS. An uncle relayed the family lore to me that when these wagon trains camped for the night in low lands, they cut palmetto fronds and laid them on the camp site to pad against the dampness.

When finally arriving in Mississippi, they were scarcely settled in, building a cabin, before the War of 1812 began. In the Mississippi Territory this conflict took the form of multiple Indian problems, with militia formed to protect the settlers. Travel to trading posts would have been infrequent and hazardous when attempted. Mail delivery and church meetings were suspended.

These settlers were small scale farmers, growing corn, sweet potatoes and beans. There were also cattlemen, and the bulk of their reparation claims from the 1812 conflict were for cattle losses

Thus we find James Perkins/Margaret Chandler, their two youngest daughters (Nancy and Margaret), their son Samuel Perkins with his wife Penelope, their daughter, Jane, with her husband John Smart, and James Perkins' sister, Elizabeth R. with husband, John Warren, migrating to Mississippi by wagon.

There were other routes to the Mississippi Territory. Consider this account by Mr. H. Skipwith, from East Feliciana Past and Present, 1892, where he writes of the original settlers in East Feliciana Parish's Eighth Ward:

In the same fleet of flatboats which floated the Doughtys out of South Carolina, down the head waters of the Tennessee and through the perilous Muscle Shoals, down the Ohio and Mississippi to Natchez, came out of the same neighborhood a column of immigrants with the families, slaves, and household goods; and from Natchez, on foot and in wagons, probably along the same trace which old Leonard Hornsby blazed out in 1802, to the banks of Beaver Creek, near which most of these colonists commenced their clearings. This large column of colonists coming into the ward in 1806 embraced the ancestors of the Doughtys, Rentzs, Brians, Morgans and Whites, who used to tell their descendants some thrilling tales of hairbreadth escapes from shipwreck on the snags, sawyers and hidden rocks in the unknown channels of the French Broad, and how, appalled by the angry roar of the swift torrents, whirlpools and eddies of the Muscle Shoals, the immigrants from Darlington District landed their wives, little ones and slaves at the head of the Shoals and trusted the ark containing their herds, household and kitchen and plantation outfits to a skilled Indian pilot, who, standing with his long pole at the bow, with his squaw at the helm, would brave the dangers of the perilous passage while the human passengers footed around the shoals by a "cut-off"

The Indian pilots brought most of the boats safely to the foot of the Shoals, but sometimes one would be wrecked and an outfit for a home in the wilderness would go to the bottom.

There was another large column of immigrants starting from Darlington District in 1804 or 1805 voyaging by flatboats down the Tennessee and its headwaters for East Feliciana via Natchez, composed of the Scotts, Dunns, Perkins, Winters, Robins, McKneelys, all connected by intermarriages with Scotts of South Carolina who were near kindred to the Scotts of Virginia from whom the great Winfield Scott derived his birth. Though starting earlier than the column in which came old Levi Doughty and John White, they arrived in the Eighth Ward later, because, at the head of the Muscle Shoals they diverged in wagons from the river route around by Nashville and the Hermitage where they were hospitably entertained by "Old Hickory." At the head of this last column was Lewis Perkins and his daughter, Sarah, who was born in South Carolina 1791, and his son James, born in the same State in 1800.

When he reached the Eighth Ward in 1806, Mr. Lewis Perkins made his clearing on the banks of Little Beaver Creek, but soon abandoned it to remove to another clearing just above the line of demarcation, impelled by hereditary and very natural reluctance to live under monarchial government.

Just how much confidence can we put in Mr. Skipwith's account? My immediate reaction was, "The Tennessee River doesn't do that." But after consulting an atlas I found that the Tennessee River does, indeed, take some remarkable turns. It begins in the northeastern corner of the state of Tennessee, runs southwesterly into northern Alabama. Then, defying all logic, turns north and flows up through the western portion of the state of Tennessee, paralleling the Mississippi River, but flowing the opposite direction, up and up, into the western portion of Kentucky and empties into the Ohio! Mr. Skipwith knew his geography better than I.

And the French Broad River begins in western North Carolina, very near to the South Carolina border, and flows northwest into the Nolichucky River, which flows esterly through the Great Smokey Mountains, into the Tennessee River.

So the route seems logical for my ancestors in South Carolina. What would the trip by flatboat have been like? We have only one journal preserved that I could find on river travel of that era. This is the journal of Colonel Donelson who led a party of some 200 persons in December 1779 and settled in Nashville, Tennessee, some four months and 1,000 miles later.

This Donelson party had to contend with hostile Cherokee Indians as well as severe weather and the natural hazards of the Tennessee River. The hostility of the Cherokee nation was quelled by the Nickajack Expedition of September 1794 and in 1800 the Cherokee had become peaceful farmers, but the river itself remained wild and free.

Navigation was easiest in the winter and spring months when the hither water levels permitted smoother passage over the rapids. Flatboats were basically large log rafts onto which were built shelters and stock pens. They were maneuvered by means of poles and a tiller.

Donald Davidson, in The Tennesee gives us this description of the great river:

In wantonly choosing a tortuous path through Walden's Ridge the Tennessee creates—or did create before it was tamed—a series of fearsome perils to navigators. To these the early boatmen gave names that ring with humorous eloquence: the Suck, the Boiling Pot, the Skillet, the Frying Pan. These phenomena were caused by the sudden narrowing of the channel and the resulting constriction of the mighty waters of the Upper Tennessee. In old times this thirty-mile stretch was known as the Narrows. Later, the name of the first obstacle, the Suck, was often applied to the whole series.

The great Muscle Shoals begin near the mouth of Elk River and continue all the way to Florence. In this historic stretch the Tennessee falls more than three and a half feet to the mile over a distance of nearly forty miles. A tortured, irregular formation of hard, nonerodable rocks overlies and mingles with the softer rock of the river bed. The resulting extensive rapids, dotted with islands and segmented by reefs and bars, made Muscle Shoals for centuries the greatest single barrier to navigation of the Tennessee.

Would it have been a feasible plan to leave flatboats at the head of Muscle Shoals and continue by wagon to Nashville? Evidently this safer route was seriously considered by the intrepid Colonel Donelson in 1779, and the men who preceded the flatboat expedition were to prepare a trail of blazed trees if the Indians would permit a wagon route to be made. But Colonel Donelson was not as fortunate as was the troupe led by Lewis Perkins, the Colonel had to take the river route.

Did this column from Darlington District, SC actually visit with Andrew Jackson? Possibly. In 1796 Jackson was in Philadelphia serving as Tennessee's first Congressman. Then Tennessee's William Blount was expelled from the Senate and Jackson was elected to replace him. A series of financial reverses and problems at home distracted Jackson so that he resigned his Senate seat in the spring of 1798 and returned to Tennessee.

Jackson ran for judge on Tennessee's Superior Court and served thus for the next six years. Hence from 1799 to about 1805 he would have been riding the court circuit between Nashville, Knoxville and Jonesborough. By 1800 he had probably completed his blockhouse at the farm containing the Hermitage today. The blockhouse was a modest but comfortable home with one room downstairs, two upstairs. The original Hermitage mansion was not built until 1819.

To lend credence to a Tennessee visit, Lewis Perkins' three eldest children declared to census enumerators in 1850 and 1860 that they were born in Tennessee.

My lineal descendant, a nephew of Lewis Perkins, was Rees Perkins, son of the James Perkins/Margaret Chandler who settled in GA before a westward migration by wagon in 1810. Rees Perkins was married in SC to Martha Morgan and they had at least their first son, William K. Perkins, before the migration. Rees Perkins may have come in the column with Lewis Perkins or he may have been part of the column with the Morgans, his in-laws. At any rate, when Rees Perkins joined Ebenezer Baptist Church in Amite County, MS, we have the following entry:

May 9, 1806. Convened on Saturday at Ebenezer, the following Baptist members, namely: John Courtney, Mark Cole, Hannah Cole, Mary Curtis from Cole's Creek Church of this territory, and Batson Morgan and Elizabeth Morgan from Black Creek Church, South Carolina, Reece Perkins from Welch Neck Church, South Carolina, James Mumford, Ezra Courtney, Elizabeth Courtney from Ebenezer Church, South Carolina, Sarah Chance from Banks Camp Church, Georgia; the said members having thus met requested to be constituted a church, which was accordingly done by the Reverend Richard Curtis and Thomas Mercer, with the aid of James Courtney from South Carolina, Jonathan Curtis from Cole's Creek Church, and Isaac Jackson from New Providence.

During the decade of this migration study, the parishes of East and West Feliciana, East Baton Rouge, St. Helena, Livingston, Tangipahoa, Washington and St. Tammany were still part of west Florida and under the jurisdiction of the King of Spain until 1810. Most of these early pioneers settled either very near the line of demarcation or just over it. In the 1820 census, I find Rees Perkins and William K. Perkins residents of Beaver Creek, Feliciana Parish. Whether traveling by wagon or flatboat on the rivers, many hardy families soon populated the fertile land of the Florida parishes and southern Mississippi, preparing a rich heritage for us today.

A PRAYER OF GENEALOGISTS

Lord, help me dig into the past and sift the sands of time That I might find the roots that made this family tree of mine. Lord, help me trace the ancient roads on which my fathers trod And led them through so many lands to find our present sod.

Lord, help me find an ancient book or dusty manuscript That's safely hidden now away in some forgotten crypt; Lord, let it bridge the gap that haunts my soul when I can't find The missing link between some name that ends the same as mine.

SOLDIERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION BURIED IN TEXAS By Mic Barnette

Most people do not associate Texas with the American Revolution. There are, however, forty two known soldiers of the American Revolution who came to Texas and are buried here.

In addition to soldiers who gave their services to the new United States in the East, the Sons of the American Revolution, the SAR, now accepts members whose ancestors served in the Spanish military under Governor Galvez in New Orleans. They, also, accept members for the patriotic service rendered by vaqueros who drove cattle from Texas to Louisiana to feed the soldiers in Galvez' military forces. The Daughters of the American Revolution are expected to follow the lead of the SAR. In the future the graves of the supporters of Galvez may become known and documented adding to the forty two known patriot graves in Texas.

The names of the forty two soldiers of the American Revolution buried in Texas are: In Montgomery County, Zachariah Landrum and Owen Shannon. In Walker County, Mark Lott Manning and James Tinsley. In Harrison County, Bailey Anderson and William Delafield. In Nacogdoches County, Benjamin W. Anderson, John James Cedar, Warren Davis, Bernard D'Ortolant, Isaac Simpson and William Sparks. In Red River County, Benjamin Clark, James Potter Collins and David Strickland. In San Augustine County, William Eakin, William Gates, Able Allison Lewis, Charles Polk, Edmond Quirk and Samuel Thompson. In Travis County, Robert Rankin and Stephen Williams.

The following nineteen soldiers are the only known American Revolutionary War Soldiers buried in their respective counties. John Abston is buried in Collin County; James Adams in Orange County; Joseph de la Baume in Austin County; John Baptiste Chaison in Jefferson County; Aaron Cherry in Liberty County; John Dollarhide in Angelina County; Alexander Hodge in Fort Bend County; Thomas Blair Hogg in Cherokee County; Thomas C. Holmes in Newton County; James Lemmon in Dallas County; John Parker in Limestone County; William Smeathers in Brazoria County; Samuel Smith in Rusk County; John SoRelle in Fayette County; Jeremiah Stell in Lamar County; James Thompson in Morris County; Richard Tice in Washington County; Evan Thomas Watson in Bowie County and Benjamin Wightman in Matagorda County.

The nativity of the Revolutionary soldiers buried in Texas was overwhelmingly Southern. Fifteen were born in Virginia, ten in North Carolina and five in South Carolina. In addition, two were born in Maryland and one each in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut and Louisiana. There was, also, one born in France, one in England and one in Nova Scotia. Three soldiers do not have a known place of birth.

Mic Barnette's weekly genealogy column appears each Saturday in the "This Weekend" section of the Houston Chronicle. You can also read it on the Web at Barnette's Family Tree Book Company: http://www.barnettesbooks.com

Exploring GenConnect

By Myra Vanderpool Gormley, CG

If you haven't discovered GenConnect at RootsWeb and its incredible searchable query boards you're in for an awesome adventure. If your research is currently focused in the United States, start the journey at GenConnect's USA Visitor Center page: http://cgi.rootsweb.com/~genbbs/usaindex.html

There you find links to all 50 states, plus District of Columbia and Oklahoma-Indian Territories. Click on the locality of interest, then select a county. This will take you to the Query Form page for that county, where queries are posted, read and searched.

Since GenConnect archives queries, it can take time to scroll through a busy Query Board, such as the one at Orange County, North Carolina and its current approximately 900 messages. However, if you click on the "Surname List" link, listed on a line just above the Message Index heading, you get all of queries -- sorted alphabetically by surname, the post type (query, biography, or obituary) and date it was posted, plus a hot link to the appropriate message. The latter provides you with the e-mail address of the person who posted the query.

This nifty search feature enables you to do some quick researching for postings pertaining to the surnames in localities of interest to you. Narrowing searches by surnames to specific localities greatly enhances your chances of finding missing links and cousins working on the same family lines.

The URL for GenConnect's "Index to Countries" is: http://cgi.rootsweb.com/~genbbs/qindex.html

http://cgi.rootsweb.com/~genbbs/index.html. Be sure to check out its special "Collections," "Surname Collections," and "System Statistics."

Take a minute or two to read the "Hints and Tips" at GenConnect. The instructions are simple and brief, but to get the most out of the system follow the guidelines. Some eager genealogists have neglected to do this, resulting in numerous posting for ancestors by the name of "AND" and other highly suspicious surnames. Computers are literal, so if you list JONES AND SMITH in the surname field, it will index all three as the surnames you're researching.

GenConnect, developed by Pam Carey Durstock, Randy Winch, Nancy Trice, and Carol Hepburn, and now including new team member Marceline Beem, is brought to you courtesy of RootsWeb http://www.rootsweb.com. It's an exciting new way to research on the Web.

SHREVEPORT TIMES OBITUARIES

January 31, 1889 -- May 16, 1889

Obituaries in the early newspapers were limited and placed in various locations in the copy. Therefore, it is most difficult to locate this data. Furthermore, very seldom were family members mentioned. Frequently, much more emphasis was placed on obituaries from out of the city than local residents. The following obituaries are in a series of 1880s and 1890s obituaries which have been extracted from the Shreveport Daily Times, Shreveport, Louisiana. [Note that if the date of death is listed as about - date of newspaper is given.] The microfilm is located on the third floor of the Shreve Memorial Library, Genealogy Department, Shreveport, Louisiana. This series began in Vol. IX, No. 2 (Second Q, 1997).
