THE PRESIDENT'S PAGE

The genealogy community of Shreveport has endured another loss, Mr. Quinby McMullen, a founding member and a trustee on our first Board of Directors. We have had several losses within our group this year and I hope each of you will contribute to our Memorial Fund in remembrance of the contributions they have made to us and to genealogy. Memorial items purchased will be placed at Shreve Memorial Library; if you prefer, you may make request a specific book or microfilm dedicated to the person. I want to thank the membership for voting to make a $25.00 donation in memory of all current members in the event of their death. It is my hope that each of you will want to make donations of your own. The current funds are used to purchase tax records of all north Louisiana Parishes. We have recently purchased the Index to Louisiana Death Records which should be available at Shreve Memorial Library soon.

Thanks for being a Friend of Genealogy,

Laura Hair Duffy, President

FROM YOUR EDITOR:

We are all grateful to those who have gone before us and taken the time to prepare indexes to various types of material, thereby saving us many hours of reading documents which may not even contain the information for which we are looking. So, the next time you trudge through unindexed material, consider preparing an index for others to use. It is not necessary to transcribe all of the information provided; anyone seeking information on a particular person will not rely on the index for the facts but will go to the full document. Usually just the name, possibly an identifying factor, and the location of the information is enough.

You don't need to be a great typist or a computer expert to do this. Get a pencil and paper, put the name, type, and location of the information, and make a list in the order the information is presented. We will be glad to publish indexes of records and put a copy of the index where it can be used by researchers. Let me know if you are interested and I will help you get started.

There are several indexing projects currently being published in THE JOURNAL. One is the Osborne Funeral Home Records (1910-1959, Shreveport, LA) filmed by members of Friends of Genealogy, Inc. to the tune of six rolls of microfilm. These records are organized in books of approximately 600 handwritten cards bound in death-date order, each covering a period of some two years. Although there is a handwritten index in the front of each book, there is no master index, making it very difficult to locate anyone without knowing the death date. At the completion of this project (we are just beginning the third roll), we will pull all of this information into one book with a cross-index of all persons listed.

As you come across other records needing to be indexed, get involved. Let's return the favor to all of those wonderful people who have done this for us.

Janine Johnson Dunlap, Editor

Miss Ima G* Bugg, our own unique, lighthearted research associate, has agreed to try to answer our questions and give us some research clues. If you are confused and in need of help, drop her a line. If she can't help you, maybe some of our readers can. Send your questions/comments to: Miss Ima G* Bugg, Friends of Genealogy, Inc., P. O. Box 17835, Shreveport, LA 71138-0835.

Dear Miss Ima G* Bugg: How many questions are asked on the U.S. Citizenship test?

Dear Citizen: Lots of them, like about 100. And, get this. A recent survey revealed that over 50 percent of native born Americans could not pass this test. To see how you rate, write for a sample test: Department of Immigration and Naturalization, 425 I Street NW, Washington, DC 20536 or call 202-514-2648.

(I)

Dear Miss Ima: Help! I'm working on a chart for our upcoming family reunion and Aunt Fannie (bless her soul) keeps "forgetting" to return the family group sheet I sent her to update with her family information. Any ideas?

Dear Frustrated: Yep. Send her another family group sheet with a note that if you don't hear from her by this time next week, then this is the information that will appear on your chart at the reunion. But, make a mistake on her birth date, like about ten years (older). You'll probably get a phone call about ten minutes after she gets it!

Dear Miss Bugg: I'm trying to understand the term "Census Date." Can you help?

Dear Curious: Each time a federal census was taken, a certain date was set to be the "Census Day." The intent was to document and count every person who was living in every household on that one certain day. For example, "Census Day" for the 1920 census was January 20. Therefore, when the Census Taker finally made it around to someone's house, he wanted to know who was living there on January 20, not who was there on the day he came. If a baby had been born in March of 1920, it would not be listed on the 1920 census because it was not yet living in the household on January 20 of that year. However, if someone had died after January 20, he/she would be listed. According to this rule, if Uncle Joe was living with the family on January 20 but moved to some other state in February, he should have been listed as a member of the household for the 1920 census even though he was only there for the first month of the year. This is not always the way the enumeration was done, but it was the way it was supposed to have been done! (From Red River County Texas Quarterly, Clarksville, TX)

Dear Ima G* Bugg: How can obituaries help me with my research?

Dear Obit: Lots of ways. As a genealogist, you should be aware of the importance of finding a death certificate for each ancestor. They provide a source of information for an individual's marriage, place and date of birth, parents, siblings, and children. Obituaries can give you some insight into what kind of person your ancestor was, death date, place and cause of death, where he or she is buried, from what foreign country he or she emigrated, when he or she arrived in America, and when he or she got to the area of the final resting place. Some of the older obituaries may provide information for time periods before vital records were kept. Obituaries vary in content and length. A person's social status is sometimes shown in the wording of their obituaries. Caution: They may appear days, weeks, or even months after the date of death. [Bud Schaffer, The Tree Climber]

Dear Ima G* Bugg: I am totally at a dead end. Can you give me some clues?

Dear Clueless: Here are some clues that may help you in finding some elusive ancestors:

- Generally, there are three generations per century.
- The average age for men to marry was about 24 and for women about 20.
- Women usually outlived their husband, but older widowers frequently married much younger women who had never been married.
- Births usually occurred at two-year intervals.
- Frequently, the first child was born a year after the marriage.
- Child bearing generally ended about age 45.
- Men usually married women from their neighborhood, but if a "non-local" woman shows up, check the man's former home. Often men returned to their former residence to find a wife.
- Families and neighbors usually migrated from their old homes together, and women rarely traveled alone. If you don't find an older parent, chances are he/she "went west" with a child's family.
- If you find an ancestor with a "virtue" name (Patience, Hope, Charity, etc.), consider a New England heritage.
- Children were often named for grandparents, both male and female.

Dear Ima G* Bugg: I am descended from the Western Cherokee Nation and would like to know where I can get an application for enrollment.

Dear Cherokee: Many of your people have scattered throughout Missouri and Arkansas over the years and descendants are now being called to enroll. Chief Lola Scholl is currently working towards state and federal recognition for the tribe. Write them for an application at 776 Hwy 351, Paragould, AR 72450.

NOW WHAT DO I DO WITH ALL OF THIS STUFF?

By Edward Henry Gaulin (Sr.)

A message on the Internet caught my eye the other day and I can't get it out of my mind. A West Coast genealogist had been exchanging information with a researcher in Virginia for some time. Then it happened. Her last message bounced — it couldn't be delivered as the address no longer existed. Fortunately she had received a number of family group sheets from her correspondent which listed a telephone number. When she called the number a man answered, so she asked for her Internet friend and, after a slight hesitation was told, "Oh, Mary Ann passed away three weeks ago." Shocked, but ever gracious, she expressed her sympathy and commented how close this long-distance relationship had become and how it will be missed by her. The husband explained that he was sorry that he couldn't be of any help because he really didn't know much about what his wife was doing with her genealogy.

Perhaps you too have noticed at genealogical gatherings that the average age of the participants is something in excess of 39 years, at least judging by hair color. Most of us really don't have a lot of time to devote to our hobby until after the kids are grown, out of school and we've retired. Then it is no longer a hobby, it becomes an obsession. At some point in our continuous search for dead people, our ancestors, we recognize our own mortality and start to think about a permanent home for our research. If our children or grandchildren appear to be interested, we have it made, but frequently that's not the case. Then what happens to our "stuff"?

Genealogists are usually pretty smart people, until it comes to providing for the distribution of their genealogical assets. The latter, in my case anyway, is a room full of books, journals, magazines, pamphlets, maps, photographs, brochures, newsletters, computer equipment and furniture (desk, chairs, file cabinets, tables, lamps, etc.). The files are loaded with folders bearing family and town names, historic events, and a bunch labeled "MISC." There are miles of computer printouts, hundreds of photocopies, and many "original" vital records. My desk is usually loaded with correspondence awaiting an answer – either mine or from someone else. What should my wife do with all this stuff when I make the ultimate research trip -- a personal meeting with my ancestors?

Some of our brighter colleagues say "My college library is getting all my stuff" or it's going to the local public library or to the LDS Family History Library in Salt Lake City or even to the Library of Congress. Well, I hate to be the one to tell you this, but unless you are a celebrity or a huge financial donor, these institutions probably won't want your material -- they just don't have room for it. They would be grateful for a copy of your book, but they might not want the manuscript or research notes. The FHL would appreciate a GEDCOM disk of your genealogy database files, but it doesn't want your paper pedigree charts or family group sheets.

So what are your spouse and children to do with all of your stuff? They could really do a couple of dumb things with it if you don't provide guidance to them while you still can. It could be placed in the weekly trash collection and don't say "They wouldn't do that" because it unfortunately happens all the time. How about a garage sale? Now that is really scary, but it also happens every day. Remember all those old photos and tintypes you have seen in flea markets? How about all those bargain genealogy books you bought because you got to that garage sale before the dealers did? They all had to come from someplace. What should you do to insure the sane distribution of your genealogical assets? Perhaps the first thing is to make a record of what you have and then try to keep it current. Show the acquisition date and how much you paid for each item on the inventory sheets. This is especially helpful for artifacts, collections, and books. A photographic record of these items, including those of rare books, could also be useful. Microfilm, microfiche and complete photocopies of books and some records have value. Back issues of many journals, newsletters, and magazines are also in demand by genealogists and therefore have value. However, if you don't tell them what is valuable, your heirs probably won't know.

Now that you have identified your assets, you need to tell someone what you want done with them. Maybe the simplest way is to prepare a letter to your heirs, but remember this lacks the force of law. If they want to, they can toss everything in the trash. A better way to provide for the distribution is in your will, particularly if you also designate sufficient funds to carry out your wishes. Your Last Will and Testament is also where you may make specific bequests: your copy of the 1898 edition of Burke's Peerage to your FGS Conference roommate or your old roll-top desk to your newest granddaughter. Your wishes can now be enforced by the courts, if necessary.

If you still want to have any of your assets given to your alma mater or a local library or anywhere else, personally contact that agency and discuss the possibility -- right now. It won't come as a surprise to them and they should be able to advise you immediately of any conditions of acceptance. If you can support those conditions, ask for a written acknowledgment that can be placed with your will.

Some other things that you can do right now are to distribute copies of your research among your family, friends, and, perhaps, local or national libraries. This is simple if you have progressed to the book-writing stage, but don't be too concerned if you haven't. Many genealogists assemble their pedigree charts, group sheets, pertinent vital records, selected family photographs, and other important documents in notebook form. They write a brief introduction, provide a table of contents, and sometimes an index before having copies made for distribution. Afterwards, the notebook can be kept current with a new year's letter which might include new charts and photos.

Computerized genealogical data can be distributed in the same way on diskette. Sometimes an envelope or jacket is provided in the notebook described above to house data disks. Another way some researchers try to insure the safeguarding of their electronic data is to submit it to the LDS Ancestral File (tm) or one or more of the other commercial collections. If you don't know how to do this, consult your local genealogical society or Family History Center or even the public library for instructions.

Another thing you can do right now to benefit your heirs is to clean up your files. Eliminate unnecessary correspondence and duplicate copies of records. Toss out all those old printouts you made in 1984 on your Apple IIe computer. Sell all the "Genealogical Helper" magazines you have saved since 1973, because you will never open one of them again and you know it. If you get 50 cents each for them you can have a pretty good dinner. Give away all that old computer software that is taking up room on your bookshelves -- it's probably not worth anything anyway. Label your photographs, and diskettes too.

I find it a bit morbid, but you may wish to write your epitaph and select your tombstone now to insure future researchers will not encounter some of the same problems that you've had.

If you decide to follow some of these suggestions, when you do eventually meet your ancestors they may thank you for perpetuating their memory. They may also show you where you made some of your mistakes and be able to fill in a few of the blank spaces in your previous research.

Remember, do it now; there may be no tomorrow.

YOU THINK YOU'VE GOT TROUBLES?

A company president was trying to buy some land in Louisiana for plant expansion and had approached the government for financing. His lawyer filled out all of the necessary forms, including the abstract, tracing the title to the land back to 1803.

After reviewing the application, the government responded thusly: "We received today your letter enclosing application for your client supported by abstract of title. We have observed, however, that you have not traced the title previously to 1803, and before final approval it will be necessary that the title be traced previously to that year. Yours truly."

In reply, the lawyer sent the following letter: "Gentlemen, your letter regarding title received, I note you wish title to be claimed back further than I have done it. I was unaware that any educated man failed to know that Louisiana was purchased from France in 1803. The title of land was acquired by France by right of conquest of Spain. The land came into possession of Spain in 1492 by right of discovery by a Spanish-Portuguese sailor named Christopher Columbus, who had been granted the privilege of seeking a new route to India by Queen Isabella.

"The good Queen, being a pious woman and careful about title, took the precaution of securing the blessing of the Pope of Rome upon Columbus' voyage before she sold her jewels to help him. Now the Pope, as you know, is the emissary of Jesus Christ, who is the Son of God. And, God, it is commonly accepted, made the world. Therefore, I believe it is safe to assume that He also made the part of the United States called Louisiana, and I hope you're satisfied."

First Traffic Fatality

On September 13, 1899, Henry Hale Bliss was struck by an electric automobile in New York City after he exited a trolley car and turned to assist the woman behind him. The automobile was driven by the chauffeur of a prominent physician. The physician assisted at the scene, but Bliss later died at a hospital. Since then, more than 30 million people worldwide have met a similar fate.

SOUTH CAROLINA MARRIAGES 1735-1883 IMPLIED IN SOUTH CAROLINA LAW REPORTS 975.LAN

By Barbara R. Langdon

Compiled in three volumes, these law reports contain court cases that were appealed in the higher courts, and contain evidence of clues to marriages. There are two alphabetically ordered sections - men and women. There is also a sub-index to persons mentioned in notations below some of the references. See Key to Sources.

[Ed. Note: Always take time to scan an author's introduction to the publication. It often contains time-saving suggestions on proper use of contents.]

While not complete, years covered are 1881-1996. The older issues (1875-1930) are on microfilm. The general index listings beneficial to family researchers are the Alphabetic List of Names (including occupation, employer, and residence address), the Cemeteries, and the Libraries. This is an often overlooked resource when attempting to place a relative in a location and time frame, especially important for for the years between 1880 and 1900 as a Federal Census is not extant. What is Success?

To laugh often and much;

To win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children;

To earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends;

To appreciate beauty;

To find the best in others;

This is to have succeeded.

To leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch, or a redeemed social condition;

To know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived;

By Ralph Waldo Emerson

QUERIES

OWENS, TRICHEL

Seeking parents of Emma Eliza OWENS, born 1848/49 near Ruston in Jackson Parish, LA (become Lincoln Parish in 1873) or (according to another source) MS, died 9 Dec 1916, buried in American Cemetery in Natchitoches, LA. She married Gervais Leonard TRICHEL (born 23 Dec 1843, died 23 Jan 1904) "somewhere in Jackson Parish" in 1865. Emma was active in the Methodist Church and boarded school girls in Natchitoches. Her death certificate does not list her parents' names, nor does her obituary. Their children were:

- Thomas L.
- Maize Z.
- Mary A.
- Emma E.
- Walter S., married Marie ALLISON
- Annie C.
- Martha Estelle, married James N. CHAMBERS
- Lelia Ethel (Effie), married Christoper GARLINGTON
- Ola Vivien, married Thomas McWaters ARMITAGE

Annie Trichel was principal of Line Ave. School in Shreveport, LA. She, her sister Emma, and their nephew Henry GARLINGTON were killed in an automobile accident near Alexandria, LA in November, 1932. Would like to hear from anyone who has information about and/or photographs of members of this family. Suellen Armitage Evre, 4340 E. Yowy Street, Phoenix, AZ 85044-1543

SNODGRASS

I am researching the SNODGRASS family for my 85-year-old mother-in-law who recalls when Henry Franklin SNODGRASS ("Frank"), born 22 Nov 1872, was killed in or near New Orleans by robbers on Christmas Eve "in the 1930s." His wife, Mary Jane SNODGRASS, was in Shreveport, LA in 1937; she had children from a previous marriage by the name of "RUYLE" who lived in Shreveport. I am searching for the death record for Henry "Frank" SNODGRASS. Any information greatly appreciated.

MASON

Looking for legal records concerning the death of Thomas MASON who died 1848 in Bellvue, Bossier Parish, LA. I have found relatives of his wife, Nancy SAPP, on the 1840 LA census, but no MASON family. After Thomas' death, a family meeting was held with her relatives attendance; the document states that no relatives of the deceased were in the area. Nancy petitions to sell her half of land that she and Thomas purchased during their marriage. The other half, I assume, was inherited by the seven children. She is granted permission to sell her half, but I have not located a record of that sale. I am looking for records that will lead me to Thomas' ancestry. It appears he may have come to LA from MS (there is a Thomas MASON on the MS 1840 census) along with, or shortly after, Nancy's male relatives who appear on the LA 1840 census. There are three male MASONs on the 1850 census. I did not find reference to a land deed, but did find his name on a list of those awarded land for service in the Mexican War, which may be the land mentioned in Nancy's petition.

JENKINS

Seeking location of marriage of Nolin JENKINS and Sylvia PORTER, married 19 April 1935. His parents were "Willie" JENKINS & Trudie JEFFRESS of Warren, Bradley Co, AR; her parents were Willis JEFFRESS & "Mollie" TRAMMELL. Rebecca J. Gilley, 4203 County Road 85, Fayette, AL 35555

COFFMAN

Andrew D. COFFMAN was born 1824 in Grainger, TN, the son of David COFFMAN, a Baptist preacher (born 1787- died 1838 Polk Co, MO) and Susan BUNCH COFFMAN. The family of 9 children, including Andrew and his twin brother John H. B., moved to Polk Co, MO about 1836. Andrew married 1849 Elizabeth J. SANDERS (born 1828 Polk Co, MO); they were on the 1850 Polk Co census. I have no further information until Andrew was found in Caddo Parish, LA, married to the widow Magadalane SHELTON HARRISON; they married 21 Mar 1866 in Caddo Parish or east Texas, she was about 32 years of age. It is believed that they lived on a plantation near Greenwood, Caddo Parish, LA. In 1867 they had twins – Walter E. and Sudie; there was another son Hugh born and died in 1869. Magadalane died a short time before Hugh did in 1869. Sudie was adopted by people in Nebraska. Andrew died 3 Nov 1873 in Gainesville, Cooke Co, TX; his son Walter was living in a foster home on the 1880 Cooke Co census. Would like information this family, including on children, if any, of his first marriage. Carl Coffman, 1448 So. Handley Street, Wichita, KS 67213 <zellacoffman@hotmail.com>

BURTON, MOSS

Looking for the burial place of Emily Ann BURTON MOSS, died in 1876 in Shreveport, LA. She was the wife of Capt. Jackson C. C. MOSS, a confederate soldier in the Civil War. He died in Shreveport in 1906 but is buried in Jack Co., TX. Ralph Owen, 562 South Joplin Avenue, Tulsa, OK 74112-2925

THE PEDDY FAMILY IN LOUISIANA

The Peddy Family in Louisiana is descended from Jeremiah "Jere" Peddy (1798-after 1865) and Nancy Brantley McDaniel (1785-after 1860). His grandparents were Andrew Peddy, Sr. (born 1730-32 and died after Sep. 1795 in Wake Co., NC) and Rachel ?? (born about 1735 probably in VA and died after 1830 in GA); they married about 1755 in VA. His parents were NC Revolutionary War soldier Jeremiah Peddy (born1760 in VA and died 1828 in Monroe Co. GA) and Leviney Skinner (born 1765 in VA and died 1857 in Upson Co. GA); they married 1783 in Wake Co., NC.

Jeremiah "Jere" Peddy (born 1798 in GA) lived in Randolph Co., GA (later Jasper Co.) and Jones Co., GA, where he was married by 1823 to a widow, Nancy Brantley McDaniel (born 1785 in Chatham Co., NC and died after 1860 in Jackson Parish, LA). Nancy had children from her first marriage to Benjamin W. McDaniel. In the 1820 Census she is shown with 9 children and 5 slaves, but she is only 35 so it is likely some of her household consists of younger brothers or sisters or hired hands.

After their marriage, Jeremiah Peddy became the administrator of the estate of Benjamin W. McDaniel and was guardian of the children until 1828 when John H. Brantley (1830 resident of Jasper Co.) was appointed guardian. Jeremiah Peddy and Nancy Brantley were found in Upson Co., GA in 1830, in Macon Co., AL in 1840, and in Jackson Parish, LA in 1850 and 1860.

Jeremiah Peddy and Nancy Brantley had three sons who lived beyond childhood and married: [1] Jeremiah Peddy, Jr., [2] Andrew James ("A. J.") Peddy, and [3] James H. Peddy. Their family information follows.

NORMAN DAVIS: BLACK, SUCCESSFUL EARLY DEVELOPER By Eric J. Brock

At the very northern edge of Shreveport's Highland area is a small road called Davis Street. Barely qualifying as passable, it runs between Marshall Street and a point just east of Louisiana Avenue in the old Holmesville area which borders Highland on the south and downtown on the north. At one time it ran further west than its present length, extending all the way to the intersection of Line Avenue and Howell Street (now part of Fairfield), but I-20 construction in the early 1960s eliminated its westernmost blocks.

It is unfortunate that Davis Street is so little known and in such a poor state of repair, for behind its name lies a fascinating and important story. Davis Street is named for one of Shreveport's earliest developers and one of the very first to subdivide property outside the original grid laid out by the Shreve Town Company in 1836. What is even more significant, especially considering the era in which he lived, is that he was black.

Norman Davis was born in Virginia in 1800. Very little is known of his early life except that he was of mixed parentage. Sometime around the age of 45 he settled in Shreveport, where he practiced the trade of a barber, operating N. Davis' Shaving and Hair Dressing Shop on the south side of the 200 block of Texas Street, about where part of the old CNB/United Mercantile Building stands today. Next door was the Powell Hotel and nearby were other hotels, insuring a steady trade.

By the late 1840s, Davis' shop was a regular advertiser in the Caddo Gazette, though he himself never learned to read and write, signing all legal documents with an "X." The 1850 census shows the Davis family as representing five of the 21 free blacks living in Shreveport at the time. Davis' wife, Catherine, was born a slave in Mississippi in 1810, her freedom presumably purchased by her husband. They had three children, all natives of Louisiana: Christopher (b. 1833), Sally Ann (b. 1838), and William Nelson (b. 1842). William Nelson Davis would later, like his father, become a barber and real estate developer.

In 1848, Norman Davis purchased a 10-acre tract of land just west of what is now downtown. Beginning in 1849 he subdivided it in 31 lots, 15 of which were sold by 1851, all to well-to-do white Shreveporters. The area of the initial development was what is now Austin Place, Grand Avenue, and the 900 block of Texas Avenue.

In 1866, when Texas Avenue was widened to its present width, Davis sold the right-of-way on either side of the 900 block to the city for $800 (equal to more than $25,000 in today's dollars).

In addition to his real estate developing, Davis was the leader of one of Shreveport's first musical ensembles, the Royal Ethiopian Band. The band was made up of "free men of color" and slaves and played at many early social functions. The Caddo Gazette in 1853 described the city's earliest known debutante ball and mentioned "Old Norman" playing his "soul-stirring violin."

The Royal Ethiopian Band in 1849 was exempted by the City Council from the 9 p.m. curfew imposed upon slaves (half of its members were slaves, half free). Members of the band at the time were Isaac Johnson, Jim Brown, Billy Field, Robin Moore, and Norman Davis, all freemen, and Henry, Mike, Joe, and another Norman, all slaves.

It is interesting to observe the levels of cooperation and camaraderie between the races and between bondmen and freemen during the pre-Civil War years. Free blacks were treated by their white neighbors essentially as equals, while slaves obviously were not. Yet free blacks treated enslaved blacks as equals. Slaves who had special skills such as those of the Ethiopian Band members could thus earn an income for themselves and some could use this money toward purchasing their freedom.

In any case, Davis was also engaged in partnerships with white property owners, hiring the City Surveyor, G. D. Jones, to divide their property into lots upon which Davis would then build houses for speculation. Parts of the Crosstown and Bluegoose areas were thus developed, in part through partnerships between Norman Davis and landowners such as Walker Carter (Henry Shreve's son-in-law), Featherstone R. Roach, and others.

Davis Street was one of two streets named in Davis' honor. The other was Norman Street, which connected Texas Avenue to Snow Street. Today it is known as Wilson Street or Wilson Alley, and in 1996 was closed as a through street.

Norman Davis spent the years 1866, 1867, and part of 1868 dividing his time between Shreveport and Galveston, Texas. Why he spent so much time in Galveston is uncertain, but he also owned land in the vicinity. Catherine Davis and the children remained in Shreveport during Norman's time in Texas. In May, 1868, Norman Davis died in Galveston.

Rarely during the tumultuous and racially charged period of Reconstruction did white-owned Southern newspapers give lengthy or laudatory obituaries to blacks, but the former pro-Confederate paper Southwestern did just that for Norman Davis on May 20, 1868. Additionally, according to the Southwestern, Davis left an estate valued at some $120,000 (the equivalent of well over $3.5 million in today's dollars), an enormous amount for anyone of either race at the time. This included his barber shop, his real estate and other property holdings in and around Shreveport and rural land in Texas as well.

William N. Davis continued on his father's path. It was he who named the two streets in Norman Davis' honor. Later he and his mother also sold the right of way parallel to Texas Avenue where it crossed Norman Street to the Southern Pacific Railroad. It is now used by Kansas City Southern.

The story of Norman Davis is one which deserves to be remembered. Like a later black developer, Giles Moore, Davis left a legacy still present in Shreveport - a remarkable and rare success for a black man in those days and a testament to his talent, his ability to overcome the odds stacked against him, and to his business acumen.

SHE MADE A LITTLE LIST By Beth Maltbie Uyehara
buye@aol.com>

When I saw a flyer a couple of months ago advertising an all-day Internet seminar conducted by Cyndi Howells, I sent my check and registration off immediately and counted the days. The location was an hour's drive away, but I figured that was a small price to pay to hear what "THE" Cyndi Howells has to say about Internet genealogy.

Ms. Howells is, of course, the Cyndi of "Cyndi's List of Genealogy Sites on the Internet" <http://www.CyndisList.com> -- for many people, the starting point for Internet genealogical research. Her Web site is an awesomely well organized ("I'm obsessive/compulsive," she joked when I had a chance to meet her and ask her about it) compendium of more than 29,000 genealogy links, with about 1,000 new ones added each month.

The list started as the Howells' personal home page in March 1996. Since then, it has been awarded the Golden Web Award, and named a "Hot Site" by "USA Today," among dozens of other honors. "Newsweek" and the "Wall Street Journal" have both reported on it favorably, and some 13,000 visitors log on to her main index and 24,000 more visit at least one section of the site every day.

"Cyndi's List" is a deceptively innocent name for what should really be called "Everything You Ever Wanted to Know About Internet Genealogy and How to Find It." I don't bother with genealogy bookmarks, myself; I just log on to Cyndi's List and zip to the link I need, figuring that she's a lot more likely to be accurate than a bookmark I set up a year ago. She updates her site on a continuous basis, whereas my bookmarks just vegetate on my hard drive, expiring 30 seconds before I try to use one.

In addition to her mind-boggling Web site -- and her adorable new baby -- Cyndi is the author of "Netting Your Ancestors" (Genealogical Publishing Co. Inc., 1998), an introduction to genealogy on the Internet, and is in charge of the Web page for the Tacoma-Pierce County (Washington) Genealogical Society. She is a member of that group's board of directors, and the listowner for the society's PSRoots-L@rootsweb.com mailing list. Just typing all that out exhausts me. She actually does it all.

I had not planned to buy Cyndi's book, but after listening to her presentation for a half hour at the seminar, I realized that if I could remember and utilize just half her computer tips, I would be light years ahead in my own computing expertise. It seemed more efficient to buy the book than frantically to scribble notes for six hours, so I did. She gives highly practical advice on such things as writing effective subject lines for e-mail – what to say to get your messages read instead of instantly deleted – and organizing your newsgroup e-mail.

I asked Cyndi some questions I've always wondered about – she provides a lot of background information on the Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) page of her site, but there is always something else you are dying to know, right? -- both about herself and her Web site, and she gave me permission to write up her answers.

First, yes, she's always been a computer whiz, and, although she is still a young woman, she has been devoted to genealogy for years -- since she was a teenager. Her list grew out of her personal research on the Internet, and an innocent 1995 "show-and-tell" at the Tacoma-Pierce County Genealogy Society.

"We don't have meetings in the summer," Cyndi said, "and in September, everybody tells what they'd done (in the way of research) since the last meeting. I hadn't done anything that summer except buy a new computer. I printed up one page of my bookmarks with 10 copies. I said, `I don't know if anybody's interested in this,' and they fell on me like a pack of wolves."

There weren't many genealogy sites on the Internet when she started. "I was just looking to see what was there," she said. "We were looking for English things for Mark, and I was working on my own Civil War research." After the show-and-tell session, she continued to surf, amassing bookmarks, until one day, she and her husband, Mark, took a free HTML tutorial online. Then, like a million other people before and since, they decided to set up a home page.

"I started messing with Web sites. I said. "What should we put on it?" We put up a couple of articles we had written and added these few links. Basically, it was all our bookmarks," she said. "It just grew. I kept adding links, then someone e-mailed me and said, 'The page takes too long to load,' so I said, 'Maybe I should break it up into smaller pages.' Now I have 270 pages."

She set up the Howells' home page in March 1996. In August, the site abruptly took off. "I'm not sure what happened in August," she said. "I had worked on it steadily. I think that suddenly people realized that if you come back every day there's something added. It wasn't just a static site. But suddenly, I had a lot of e-mail (she now gets more than 200 message a day) and a lot of hits. And it hasn't let up since." The awards and the 1997 "Newsweek" article increased awareness of the site even more.

"All the attention has just come to me," she said. "I haven't solicited it or gone to anybody and said, "Write about me." " Maintaining the site has become a full-time job, consuming at least eight hours a day. She spends another two hours daily trying to keep up with her e-mail. It leaves her little time to surf the Web as she did when she started, and she now finds most new links through referrals.

Despite the steadily increasing workload, she has resisted getting help with the site because she fears losing control over its organization "Up to 10,000 links, I could remember them all," she said. "I can still remember if I've seen a Web site before. I can remember where I've put something, and I haven't been able to figure out a way to delegate this."

She is working with someone on the problem of keeping all the links current, however. "The one thing that bothers me are broken links," Cyndi said. "It doesn't make sense to put all this work into the site and add more and more links if half of them don't work. You can't just slap it up and leave it. I'm working on a project right now with a friend who has a software program that finds broken links. She's the first one I have had helping me."

The biggest problem, she said, is handling the e-mail. "There are days when I just want to scream, but that's because of the e-mail. I'm trying to make it less intrusive. Someone is working with me on programs that will allow people to send me information in the proper format. Right now, I have to sort through it all."

She has recently added a sponsor ("Generations," a genealogy software program), but when asked if she would ever charge users for access, she replied, "Never! That is one thing that I stipulated in my relationship with the sponsor. I said this would never be something for charge. Even without sponsorship, I would work on it for free. People are always trying to find ways to make a buck, but this is always going to be free as long as my name is on it."

I asked what she'd like to see more of on the Internet. She said that she'd like to see more how-to articles, but even more importantly, she'd like to see less duplication of effort and materials. "I'm seeing a lot of people putting up information and links that are available in many, many places. Not that there can't be competition, but if it already exists elsewhere, why do that? Why not do something original?"

Cyndi said that she sees an unfortunate trend happening in genealogy right now, and it's not necessarily because of the Internet, although the Internet is helping to make it worse.

"I'm afraid that a lot of people are just taking information at face value," she said. "People have been researching for two days and they put their Web site up. They copy information from somewhere and just assume it's factual. There are people who have been online for two minutes and they've done research for three minutes, and they think everything they find is accurate. Of course, long-time researchers are also putting up Web sites, and some of the information is OK, but much is not."

"You still can't find primary sources (on the Internet), and that's because there's an expense to it. What I've been trying to teach is that the Internet is a tool, like the Family History Center. Take time to learn the tool. It's like the card catalog in any library. You need to learn how to use the tool, then you can apply it to your research.

"But you still have to do the research."

SHREVEPORT TIMES OBITUARIES

Obituaries in the early newspapers were limited and placed in various locations in the copy. Therefore, it is most difficult to locate this data. Furthermore, very seldom were family members mentioned. Frequently, much more emphasis was placed on obituaries from out of the city than local residents. [Note that if the date of death is listed as about - date of newspaper is given.] The microfilm is located on the third floor of the Shreve Memorial Library, Genealogy Department, Shreveport, Louisiana. This series began in Vol. IX, No. 2 (Second Q, 1997).
