COUNTY MAPS Ema (Etheredge) Tipton

After almost forty years of research on one of her families, the lady looked at a map of the county where they had lived and exclaimed, "If I had started out with this map, I would have saved a lifetime of frustration and disappointment!" The ancient, abandoned cemetary she was searching for was plainly marked within a few miles of the large area she had covered many times without finding it.

When county maps were discussed at a recent senselingy masting, 12 of the 39 appealed selected believed believed believed by the severely hand courthouses and archives, you may get by without these maps, but you will be severely handicapped. Who needs handicaps? If you want to become better acquainted with your forefathers - and mothers - as individuals, or if you plan to travel back to where they once lived, these maps are an absolute necessity.

Sizes, prices and details vary slightly from state to state. A list of the prices and sizes may be obtained by writing to the STATE HIGHWAY DETARTMENT at the STATE CAPITOL of the STATE WHERE THE COUNTIES ARE LOCATED. The 20-24" x 30-36" sizes cost about 35c each. You may obstin larger sizes, but the small maps are easter to handle. All maps give keys to the symbols used, and you should become thoroughly familiar with those you are most interested in. Those who do their research at Shreve Memorial Library will find a complete collection of all Louisiana Parish maps in the Genealogy Room, and lists of maps available from most states are in the files there. All others should write for information from the State Highway Departments of the various states.

Details include all rural roads, cemetaries visible or accessible from roads, old church and school buildings, old villages, towns, battle grounds, parks, small lakes, creeks, swamps, mountains, ferries, exisiting buildings visible from the roads, and some states show township and section lines. Maps from some areas are more complete than others, but all show much valuable information seldom found elsewhere.

Early land records are very vague, but almost all give some geographical clue to the location, such as on "Long Creek", "Blue Swamp", or "Barren Flats." Family traditions refer to old towns, villages, churches, schools, creeks, rivers, swamps and battles. You may find many of these marked on the county maps.

Later land records give the township and section, and on maps showing these, you can find the exact location. The old cemetaries where your ancestors sleep will be near where they lived, and if not completely obliterated, may be shown.

If you plan a trip to some unfamiliar rural area, order your maps well in advance and mark the places you are particularly interested in. Primitive rural roads rarely - almost never - have signs to identify them. They turn, fork, divide and crisscross into a baffling maze, so that a stranger can become utterly lost within minutes after leaving the main highway. Many old cemetaries are hidden by tall thick underbrush and you can pass within a few feet of them without knowing they are there. Many are located on narrow one-lane poorly maintained dirt roads that you would never drive down unless you knew the cemerary was on that particular country lane.

With these maps, family traditions and land records, it is usually easy to find other information. Whether you do your research at a local library, by correspondence, or collect records from original sources, you will find the maps very helpful. You should certainly obtain them for areas where you are having difficulties. For travel guidance, the latest maps are best, but for research purposes, ask for the oldest, most obsolete maps available.

All you need to become an expert map reader is good eyesight, a good magnifying glass, and a fine sense of direction. Remember, the top of the map is North, the bottom is South, the right side is East, and the left side is West. However, the small printing on these maps is often upside down, crossways and cattercornered, and sometimes curved into the bend of a river so it goes all directions at once. Unless you can read upside down and backwards, you will have to turn the maps around many times.

As soon as I get a new county map, I mark every cemetary in the county with a red dot, and if I have land records, outline the area right down to the last quarter of a quarter section. If township and section lines are not shown on the maps, or if the land records do not give this information, I underline all geographical clues such as creeks, rivers and towns that are given. During trips back to these areas, other details are marked or added to the maps.

All my ancestors had an affinity for county lines. If they could find a place where several counties joined, that is where they settled. If it were near a state line, so much the better. Deeds, marriages, and other documents are recorded in every nearby county and across state lines. One ancestor built his house right on the spot where three counties joined, so that he claimed residence in all three, depending upon whether he was sleeping, eating or sitting in the "front" room. It is said he was not too fond of tax collectors and thoroughly enjoyed argueing with them about where he lived. Most of his records are in a county whose boundary was ten miles away because the courthouse was nearer and the roads to it were better.

Last summer, with only a county map to guide us, we found the graves of my great-great-great-grandparents, on the side of a mountain in Tennessee, hidden by a tall dense growth of vines and brush. After 130 years, the tombstone inscriptions are still quite legible, and this is the only real proof I have of the dates of their births and deaths. With land records and the maps, we located the foundations of homes of other ancestors in that area, and found two other old, abandoned, forgotten cemetaries. Relatives in the area became so interested in our research that these old cemetaries have now been cleaned off and are being restored.

For me, the most important details are the locations of old abandoned church and school buildings, old villages and towns, ancient cemetaries, small creeks and lakes, and primitive roads not shown on other maps. If you are searching for some place prominent in your family traditions, these maps may help you find them just as they helped us find the "Wash Hole" on a creek in Butler County Alabama and a spot near Waynesboro, Georgia, "bounded on one side by the Widow Murdock's land and on the other by Briar Creek."

LEST WE FORGET

A Brief Account of the Life of One of my Ancestors By Elizabeth Miller .

In these times of strife and troubles, we are all inclined to think that such problems are peculiar to our times and our ancestors were not afflicted with such seemingly insolvable problems, but throughout the history of this country it has been necessary for men to fight and die to secure and maintain our freedom. One such man was James Thomas (Hi-Key) Moseley, a Revolutionary soldier, whose nickname was earned because of his high pitched voice which could be heard throughout the countryside.

He was born December 24, 1756 in Brunswick County, Va., son of John and Ann Moseley. It is not known just when this family left Virginia but when he was about 14 years of age they were living in North Carolina, on the Yadkin River at the foot of Yellow Mountain and there he became associated with Daniel Boone and planned to accompany him on the trip he was planning to Kentucky but was dissuaded by his parents due to his youth. The family later moved to South Carolina, settling first in Chester District, then in Union District.

James Thomas Moseley enlisted in June, 1776, and served as a scout. His application for a pension states that he fought the Cherokee Indians, was at the taking of Orangeburgh, at the cutting up of an English regiment and destruction of a fort on the Easteide of Cooper River nearly opposite Monk's Corner, as well as numerous skirmishes and other battles. He served under Generals Sumter and Pickens, having a wide reputation as a scout, always going on foot. Family tradition states he was also at the Battles of Kings Mountain and Cowpens, but no proof of this has so far been discovered by the writer. If so, he fought very near his home, as it was not far from Cowpens, on the Pacolet River on Sandy Run. His gravestone was found on Sandy Run, the cemetery having been washed away by flood in 1903.

He was a blacksmith and "tooth puller". He made his tooth pullers in his blacksmith shop and they are now in the Union County Museum, University Center, Union, S.C.

Rev. J.D. Bailey, in "History of Grindal Shoals", tells this story concerning the tooth pullers: A certain Irishman named O'Nesl lived in the neighborhood. He was a good natured but kind of pestiferous person who depended much of the time on acquaint-ances for his daily food. One day he went to Moseley and informed him that he had come to get a tooth "pulled". Hi-Key went to his blacksmith shop and got an armful of hammers, tongs, chisels, etc.

"Does it take all of those instruments to pull a tooth?", inquired O'Neal.

"Yes, and many more", returned Moseley.

"Then I bid you good day, Mr. Moseley" cried the Irishman and was gone in a hurry.

He was also known as a hunter. A post oak, known as Moseley's Oak, stood for many years on the road to Grindal Shoals Ford. Everyone knew it in the countryside and no sacriligious hand would dare touch it. It seems that one day Moseley was out hunting and took a small deer. While returning home with it on his shoulder, the wolves got a scent of the blood and were soon on his trail. He heard them coming and knew he must make an effort to save himself and the meat. He thereby sank the deer in a neighboring branch and having clumbed the tree, waited their coming. They bayed around the tree all night. When asked why he did not shoot, since he had his rifle, he said he wanted to kill the leader of the pack. He could not distringuish him in the dark and as soon as daylight came they began to enlarge the circle they were constantly making around the tree. He then singled out the leader and shot him. The rest retreated to their den.

Well thought of by his neighbors, he was a good citizen. Henry Fernandez, a man of considerable wealth and influence, joined lands with him. One day Fernandez and a disgruntled friend rode into the ford on Sandy Run Creek and paused to let their horses drink. Moseley was secreted in the bushes nearby fishing and overheard their conversation. Fernandez's friend commented on the fine bottom land and inquired if they were his, but Fernandez told him that the land belonged to "Hi-Key". His friend commented that it looked to him as if he, Fernandez, would want that fine land for himself. Fernandez replied "I had rather the man than the land near me". After that Hi-Key would do anything in his power for Henry Fernandez.

He was married first in 1781 to Nancy Jasper, daughter of John Jasper and Mary Herndon, and sister of Sgt. William Jasper, the hero of Fort Moultrie fame, and they had the following children:

Betsy (married Mark Fowler); Nancy; Rhodie; James T., Jr., John Baxter; Dorcas; William; Susanna (married Wymac Fowler).

At about 80 years of age he married a second time to Martha Pickens, who had a son by a previous marriage, John Pickens. She bore him a daughter, Jane Moseley, born December 31, 1835, who married Shelton McWhirter, on July 16, 1850. His second wife predeceased him on or about October 2, 1839. He died May 19, 1840. His will was dated October 4, 1839, and probated June 6, 1840, Union County, S.C.

I am proud and grateful to be descended from forebears who had the courage and determination to fight for, build, and keep this country free from tyranny and certainly hope that future generations will also appreciate their heritage.

HISTORY OF SPARTANBURG COUNTY SOUTH CAROLINA

First permanent settlement in what is now Spartanburg County seems to have been those on the various branches of TYGER RIVER 1761 by a group of Scotch Irish Presbyterians who came from Pennsylvania:

BARRY, MOORE, COLLINS, ANDERSON, THOMPSON, RAY, PENNY, MCMAHON, MILLER andNICHOLLS.

Some of these names occur in JAMES, JORDAN, PORT PRINCE accounts kept in 1776.

These came later:

COAN, SNODDY, PEDEN, ALEXANDER, CASTON, MORTON, NESBITT.

These two parties soon occupied 20 miles square. Early in 1765 Nazareth Church was founded (1772). Earlville by Earle Fort, chief stronghold against Indians, also Hamptons, JACKSON, PRINCES of NORTH PACOLET area. FAIRFOREST CHURCH founded in 1765 (Also known as Friendship.)

In 1776 through CHEROKEE INDAINS these Spartans suffered severely: HITES, HAMPTONS, PORDS, HANNONS, BISHOPS, THOMPSONS, ANDERSONS, and MILLERS. The families were attacked.

Rev. George Howe in his Centennial Discourse at NAZARETH Church September 14, 1861: BLOODY BILL CUNNINGHAM, JOHN AND JAMES WOOD killed.

The first Judicial officers for SPARTANBURG County were:

BAYLIS EARLE, JOHN THOMAS, JR., HENRY WHITE, JOHN FORD, JAMES JORDAN, WILLIAM WOOD AND HENRY MACHAN WOOD, commission dated 24 March 1785.
